

Dear Families,

First, let me thank you for your understanding and support over the last five months. Your kind messages, phone calls, and even concerns, mean a lot to all of us at Advocates.

The challenges brought on from COVID-19 have not been easy. You and your loved ones adapted in many ways for virtual day supports and programming at Advocates since March.

Our dedicated team at Advocates Life Skills and Learning Center found creative ways to remain connected with everyone we support while day services were not possible in person.

Together, you, your loved ones, and their staff collaborated and connected virtually, and now will continue remote services, while also navigating in-person supports in a healthy and safe environment.

We safely opened the doors to our day program recently and welcomed a limited group of individuals back. While some of your family members were reunited with their friends and staff in their day program, I recognize that this isn't the case for everyone and may be a burden on your family.

I am personally thanking you for your patience and collaboration with our staff through all of this as we work to slowly increase enrollment over the coming weeks and months. While we do this we will continue to provide remote programming.
